Last night a party of hunters arriving from Elk county brought in an account of the death of John Dicht, 18 years old, who was killed by a bear on Saturday. Dicht had shot the bear and had attempted to bleed it, thinking it dead. The animal however, was apparently only stunned for it arose from the ground and showed fight. In the struggle the bear tore off one of the man's arms and disembowled him. From Tidout, in Warren county, a thrilling encounter with a large black bear was reported in which the hunter narrowly escaped.Henry Bradley, of east Pittsburg, who is connected with the Westinghouse Electric company, while hunting, shot a bear in the flank. Madder by the pain, the bear rushed toward the hunter and Bradley emptied his repeater at the animal as he descended upon him, five of the bullets taking effect, but only tending to increase its fury.Just as the enraged bear reached him and prepared to strike him down, Bradley threw away his gun which was now useless and drew his hunting knife. Plunging it into the animal's side to the hilt, he reached the heart and had the satisfaction of seeing the animal drop dead at his feet. Notwithstanding this report the authorities here although no official decision has been rendered look upon the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse as having been at fault as she was going at the rate of eighteen knots an hour, whereas the Oronoco was only screaming three knots and it was the former's duty to keep clear of the latter. Beside, the captain of the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse is blamed for discharging his pilot before the vessel was clear of the harbor.A QUEEN CITY TEAM*Will Open the Basket Ball Season Here On December 7th.*WITH WHITE STARS.*Contests at the Auditorium This Year Will Be Held in a Cage.*The basket ball season will be opened in this city on Friday, December 7th, with a game between the reorganized White Stars and the representative Cincinnati team. A wire screen will be fitted around the hall, from the edge of the balcony down and inside this cage, with no possibility of the ball going out of bounds, the players will put forth their efforts for baskets. The use of the cage will make the games much faster and far more entertaining for the spectators.TEMPTED HIM*Gillette Aspired to Society Life.*Found That the Girl He Should Have Married Was a Handicap*SO HE MURDERED HER*Such is the Outline of the Prosecution in Grace Brown Case.*Expert Witness Says Girl Was Killed Before Thrown in Water.*By Associated Press.*Herkimer, N. Y., Nov. 26.—District Attorney Ward today, for the first time since the trial of Chester E. Gillette began, called a witness to the stand who testified that Grace Brown was murdered. Dr. A. O. Douglas, of Little Falls, one of the physicians who performed the autopsy on Grace Brown's body, occupied the witness chair for nearly three hours, and in the course of his testimony he swore that the body had many marks of violence, undoubtedly inflicted before the body entered the water.Dr. Douglas suggested several blows that the girl received before her immersion in the lake. One of the blows, he said, loosened one of the girl's teeth and cut and swelled her lips; another blow ruptured the blood vessels of the cheek and caused an exterior discoloration, and the most serious blow of all, which caused concussion of the brain and either killed the girl outright or so stunned her that she was unable to make any effort to save herself after she fell in the water.The condition of the girl's eyes, nose, mouth, lungs, bronchial tubes, etc., was thoroughly gone over in a rigid cross-examination by former Senator Mills, Gillette's senior counsel.Dr. Douglas said during this question-ing that there were many symptoms about Grace Brown's body which, in ordinary cases, would be suggestive of drowning, but when he had finished his testimony he still clung to the declaration that Grace Brown died from blows before immersion. He said that Gillette's tennis racket was sufficiently heavy to inflict these injuries.Attracts Large Crowd.*Herkimer, N. Y., Nov. 26.—The announcement that the physicians who performed the autopsy on the body of Grace Brown alleged to have been slain by Chester E. Gillette, were to take the stand today and tell for the first time publicly what the condition of the girl's body actually was when found, attracted a larger crowd than ever to Herkimer today. The rule established by Judge Devendorf that the doors should be closed as soon as the seats in the court room are all taken inspired all those who are anxious to hear the doctors, to make an early start and up and down the Mohawk valley hundreds of persons left for the trial immediately after an early breakfast. District Attorney Ward's method of procedure in the Gillette case has been somewhat different than that employed at the average murder trial. Prosecutors usually establish proof of death at the outset and then proceed with the work of connecting the accused with the crime. In this instance, District Attorney Ward took up the story of Grace Brown's ill fated love affair from its inception, having the jury hear the tragic story in narrative form. He has shown the early fascination of Gillette for Miss Brown, the cooling of his affections as he found society's doors open to him and the girl's appeals to him to right the wrong he had done her. Thus establishing a possible motive, the district attorney took up the trip of Gillette and Miss Brown, without bringing forth proof of her death until the point in her travels where death ensued was reached, and even today at the opening of court the prosecutor had before him the work of proving that the girl's death resulted from murder.Prosecution Scores.Dr. O. A. Douglas, of Little Falls, one of the physicians who performed the autopsy on Grace Brown's body testified today that the injuries found on the body were inflicted before death. He testified that the tennis racket that Gillette buried and which the sheriff found was capable of producing the abrasions and other in-juries found on the body."The condition of the girl's lungs did not indicate drowning," said Dr. Douglas. This latter statement was stricken out. The lips were swollen and the tip of the nose was enlarged and discolored. The left center upper tooth was overlapping the right center upper tooth. The left cheek bone was swollen. There were abrasions of the membrane of the lips. These injuries were inflicted before death, the witness said. The blood vessels of the head had been separated as if by blows.The word blows was objected to and the objection was sustained. Dr. Douglas then described the head as he found it. There was a blood clot on the brain but no fracture of the skull."In your opinion what was the cause of death?""I should say that death resulted from shock or concussions resulting from blows or injuries to the head before immersion. And immersion was unnecessary to produce death."In his cross examination of Dr. Doug-las, Mr. Mills senior counsel for Gillette, questioned the witness about any indications the body of Grace Brown might have shown. The attorney first took up the subject of the girl's eyes."You say there was much membrane in them?" asked Mr. Mills."Yes."*"Isn't that an indication of drown-ing usually?""It is."The witness also testified that the swelling of the lips, the enlargement of the tip of the nose, and the light red coloring of the lungs were symptoms of drowning. Mr. Mills then took up the question of the condition of lungs as shown at the autopsy."Did they fill the chest cavity?""Yes.""Isn't that an indication of drown-ing?""Not necessarily.""It is ordinarily known as a sym-ptom of drowning, isn't it?""Sometimes."*Mr. Mills then asked Dr. Douglas if he would not say that a body had been drowned ordinarily if he saw enlarged lips, dilated pupils of the eye, swollen and enlarged nose tip and reddened lungs."If the body had been taken from the water it would be apt to," said Dr. Douglas.CRUELTY TO A PUPIL*Charged to the Principal of Spring Street School Building.*PLEADED NOT GUILTY*Mr. Arbaugh Gave Bond for His Hearing on Saturday Next.*Sensational charges against one of the well known educators of the public school system have been filed by Humane Officer J. C. Smiley, in Justice Dempster's court.The prosecuting witness is 14-year old Geo. A. Harrison, son of a well known insurance agent of that name. The affidavit alleges that John C. Arbaugh "did cruelly and unlawfully punish said George A. Harrison by violently grabbing him, twisting his face in a violent manner, and pulling his ears, and violently pulling his hair, and pulling out a portion of his hair."The affidavit was signed by the humane officer and Mr. Arbaugh placed under arrest when he immediately entered a plea of not guilty, denied the story in detail and gave bond in the sum of $200 for his appearance at trial on Saturday morning, December first at nine o'clock.Mr. Arbaugh has been substituting as principal at the west Spring street building during the illness of the regular principal which required a transfer, Mr. Arbaugh being usually located at the East building.It is claimed by the humane officer who made the charges that this is not the first instance reported to him, and that the wounds on the Harrison had were such as to bring blood and that he suffered great pain.MUTINOUS STOKER GETS FIVE YEARS.*By Associated Press.*Portsmouth, Eng., Nov. 26.—A first class stoker named Moody, one of the ringleaders of the outbreak at the naval barracks here, Nov. 4th, was sentenced by a court martial today to five years penal servitude on the charge of participating in a mutinous assembly and inciting others to participate in it.WEAR THE BLUE*But Disgrace It Through Desertion.*Offense Has Increased Until the Number Now Reaches 6,258.*PER CENT IS HIGHEST*In the Field Artillery and the United States Cavalry is Second.*Ninety Per Cent of the Deserters Were of Native Birth.*By Associated Press.*Washington, Nov. 26.—Desertion is on the increase in the United States army. The annual report of the military secretary shows that in the year ended June 30th there were 3,358 desertions or 7.4 for every 10,000 soldiers in the army. In 1905 the rate of desertion was only 6.1. From 1895 to 1904 the average of desertion was only 4.5 per cent. The rate of desertion in 1905 was highest in the field artillery, 9.2 per cent. The cavalry was next with 7.8 per cent.White soldiers showed a desertion average of 8.4 per cent, while the negro soldiers showed an average of only 2.3 per cent. Twenty-five per cent of the desertions were in the first three months of the deserters enlistment. Ninety per cent of the deserters were of native birth, and as 89 per cent of the enlisted men in 1905 were of native birth, the rate of desertion among natives and foreigners was about the same.CANNOT CONCEAL SOME SORENESS.*By Associated Press.*Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 26.—President Chas. As an example the University of Wisconsin discontinued athletic relations this year with four of its largest and strongest rivals but still Wisconsin continues to prosper in athletics and in every other way as much as ever.""I have not given much attention to foot ball since I saw the Carlisle game and have not read the details of Saturday's game with Yale. I know what the score was and that there were few injuries. I must say, however, that foot ball has been greatly improved this year, it has less injuries and is much more openly played. That is why I enjoyed it better.""I shall look into the Yale game and the whole season of foot ball and then draw my conclusions."CHLOROFORM USED ON WOMAN AND DOG.*New York, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Nellie Munson, a bride of three months, was chloroformed and bound hand and foot in her home in Harlem early today by a burglar. The thief secured a small amount of money and some jewelry and fled, leaving the woman helpless.When Mrs. Munson revived, she managed to free an arm and by beating on a wall managed to attract the people in a neighboring flat, who discovered her plight and released her.Later Joseph Wolostein, who was acting suspiciously in the neighborhood, was arrested. He declared that he was innocent and could prove an alibi.Mrs. Munson was alone when she was attacked, her husband being employed at night. it is necessary that this vital fluid be kept free from germs,

POWER OF PERFUMES.

The Way Various Scents Act on the Nerves and Brains.
Nearly all perfumes have antiseptic qualities and are valuable in keeping away infection.

The perfumes which are the most agreeable to the sense are not always the most helpful to the nerves. Ambergis, for instance, is positively offensive to many, yet it is said to possess a wonderful power of clearing the brain and driving away the blues.

On the other hand, after of roses, with the suggestion of glowing auras and gorgeous eastern colors, predisposes to fears.

A faint odor of musk acts as a tonic, for which the best antidote is the odor of sandalwood. The fragrance of citron is as soothing to nervous folk as the sound of faroff music.

The scent of orange flowers is so depressing to the action of the heart that it is not safe for any one with disease of that organ to inhale it for any length of time. Reviving perfumes come from herbaceous plants largely, from the odors of mignonette, rosemary and lavender, and soothe the nerves.

The perfumes of lilacs, jasmine and acacia are pleasant and soothing to a healthy sense, though delicate nerves cannot enjoy them even in their garden freshness. Brought closer in clusters of blossom, their odor is narcotic and depressing, so that persons grow faint at the smell of them and may be put into heavy slumber, as if drugged by their odor.—London Express.

SIMPLE MEDICINES.

Remedies That May Be Found in Nature's Drug Store.

If chemists and druggists disappared from the face of the earth humanity could still worry along with the simple remedies which nature yields, practically ready made. There is nothing to beat rhubarb juice as a cure for gout or rheumatism except water from medicinal springs. All kinds of scurvy and blood poisoning yield to the juice of lemons or of limes, which are the greatest blood purifiers in existence.

Even doctors acknowledge that natural, fresh cream from cows' milk can give points to cod liver oil and similar nasty liquids in treating consumption.
Common mustard used as a plaster or poultice is the best cure for a cold on the chest, and the white of an egg with sugar is the finest medicine for hoarseness. To cure a burn, an application of the white skin that lines the shell of an egg is unobtainable, while the raw yolk is a capital tonic. In fact, gardens and roadsides are full of herbs of which the juice or leaves afford remedies or palliatives for almost every disease to which humanity is heir.—New York Mail.

Luminous Centipeds.
Lizard, snake and natural electric light plant all rolled into one—this is the luminous centipede, one of the most interesting creatures in nature. It is about one and a quarter inches long and covered with short hairs. Its body is very narrow and appears to be in sections. In consequence of this peculiar formation the creature appears to move sideways except when frightened.
Then the natural electric light plant feature appears, and, with an almost instantaneous wavelike motion, beginning at the tail, the color of the reptile changes from orange to a greenish phosphorescent shade. Then, sparkling with a tiny streak of green light, the creature darts away to a place of refuge. When one of the pair is in search of its mate, the color grows a bright yellow, but at will the centipede can resume its darker color, and then, if lying close to the grain of a piece of wood, is hardly noticeable.

The Word "Canteen."
A strange etymological history is that possessed by the word "canteen," —which has caused so much talk in temperance and army circles—if its origin is correctly assigned to the old Latin "cantina," which literally means "of the fifth rank" or "of fifth order." The "cantina" (viii) was a street in the Roman camp so called because it came between the fifth maniples, or company, and the sixth. Here all the business and marketing of the camp were done, and "cantina" eventually came to mean a market.—Chicago News.

Simplified.
It is said of a noted Virginia judge that in a pinch he always came out ahead. An incident of his childhood might go to prove this.

"Well, Benny," said his father when the lad had been going to school about a month, "what did you learn today?"
"About the mouse, father."
"Spell mouse."
After a little pause Benny answered:
"Father, I don't believe it was a mouse after all. It was a rat."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sydney Smith's Sharp Tongue.
Sydney Smith was at a party one evening when, seeing Mrs. Grote, wife of the historian, enter, wearing a rose colored turban, he suddenly exclaimed,
"I now know the meaning of the word grotesque!" He professed his cordial liking for both her and her husband, saying: "I like them. I like him, he is so ladylike, and I like her, she's such a perfect gentleman!"

English Art.
Foreigners appear to have great difficulty in acquiring representative examples of the English school of painting and with good reason. Our art is more fruitful in attractive hybrids than the art of any other country in the world.—Burlington Magazine.

A man is never mediocre when he has much good sense and much good feeling.—Joubert.

When a woman dishes up the dinner, she never dishes up any apologies with it unless there happens to be company present.

ENGLISH SPORT.

It Abounds in Grass That Would Not Be Tolerated Here.

If there is any man on this earth, white or black, who insists that his expenses in competitive sport must be no drain on himself, that man is the Britisher. And he is quite right. An amateur should be neither in nor out of dollar. It is entirely proper that his club, his college, his association or such collection of bodies as he represents should pay his legitimate expenses when he is sent to compete for that college or club or association or union.
England goes much farther and gives much more latitude in the matter of expenses than we do. In cricket, for example, "amateur" players in England whose services are desired for the county championship series are literally "fouled" during the entire season.
No graft of this kind could exist in America without raising such a storm as would blow the whole thing to kingdom come. Nor would we tolerate the conditions that obtain in English track athletics and "amateur" football, both of which are steeped in corrupt professionalism. And as for junketing—why, that comes near to being the Englishman's after-egg—it is a part of the English game. You might as well deprive him of his dearest possession—his prejudice, for instance—as deprive him of his junket. Let the stewards figure up how many good American dollars have gone to satisfy this national predilection through the medium of cricketers, golfers and other English athletes that have visited us—Casper Whitney in Outing Magazine.

ODD PRESERVES.

Peach Leather of the South and Wild Rose Jam of Europe.

Perhaps the oddest of all jams (some of which is imported into this country) is made from a red pulp obtained from the seed vessels of the common wild rose of Europe. It is brick red in color and, as might be imagined, is in flavor entirely unlike any other known kind of preserve.

In parts of the south what is known as "peach leather" is made from peach juice, which is put into bright pans and dried in the sun. In the dry state it looks a good deal like leather and is eaten without further preparation, keeping for an indefinite time.

There is commonly manufactured in Turkey a similar product from grapes, the juice being evaporated to the consistency of molasses. Some flour is mixed with it, and the stuff is spread in thin sheets upon muslin, being then exposed to sunshine for a couple of days.

In the same oriental country walnuts are commonly strung upon twine and after coating them with a mixture of grape molasses and sugar are dried.
Travelers bound on long journeys frequently carry these strings of nuts, which afford much nourishment in concentrated shape.

In California a delicious sirup is made from orange juice, which, of course is quite rich in sugar. And in Virginia watermelon sirup, which is said to be particularly delicious, is not unknown as a local product.—Philadelphia Press.

No Help For the Dying.
The extreme callousness of the old English gamblers or gentlemen, as they were then called, is illustrated by the following account which Horace Walpole, the celebrated letter writer, gives of a curious occurrence at White's coffee house in London. In one of his epistles to Sir Horace Mann, under date of Sept. 1, 1750, he says:
"They have put into the papers a good story, made at White's. A man dropped down dead at the door and was carried in. The club immediately made bets whether he was dead or not, and when they were going to bleed him the waggers for his death interposed and said it would affect the fairness of the bet, and they stopped their efforts."

What Surprised Him.
The minister of a certain church was greatly exercised by the drowsy habits of his people. Taking them to task on this score on Sunday afternoon, he remarked: "I see a great many of you overcome with sleep. I do not wonder at it, for the weather is oppressive, your work is hard and many of you have come a long way. Therefore," he added, "I am not surprised to see many of you asleep, but what surprises me is to see many sleeping who have had such a comfortable sleep here in the morning."—Pearson's Weekly.

Two Kinds of Insomnia.
"When Nana was engaged to Jack she didn't get enough sleep because she had to lie awake and think how much she loved him."
"Well?"
"And now their engagement is broken and now she doesn't get enough sleep because she has to lie awake to hate him."

Caught.
"Well, well! I'm surprised to hear of Miss Passy being engaged to Mr.
Gayman. He's so awfully fast, you know."
"Oh, I don't know! Apparently he wasn't fast enough to get away from her."—Philadelphia Press.

The Doctor: You call that your "conscience umbrella?" I don't quite understand. The Professor: It was returned to me anonymously by a man who said he had kept it for a year.—Chicago Tribune.

"I was a fool when I married you."
"My friends all told me so at the time, madam."—Baltimore American.

It is the custom of a well known vicar to point his sermons with either "dearly beloved brethren" or "now, to this.

"Why do you always preach to the gentlemen and never to the ladies?" she asked.
"My dear lady," said the beaming

"But not in the church!" was the

How Dr. Morse
'Solved the Milk Problem

DR. W. H. MORSE is Superintendent of the Bible Mission Society in New York.
This Society is devoted to the work of starting the Emigrant right when he reaches our shores.
The one great problem was milk for the Baby Emigrant.
In a medical journal article Dr. Morse says, in speaking of the emergency death rate of Infant Emigrants,— "66.33 per cent of the death rate was from intestinal disorders due to the use of milk of impure character. . . . Ordinary sterilization is inadequate, as really it renders the milk more indigestible. . . . Condensed milk was out of the question, as the large amount of cane sugar has altogether too much to do with causing derangement of the stomach and bowels. . . . I decided upon evaporated cream and chemical and experimental facts pronounced in favor of Van Camp's. . . . I do not know that I ever gave a "food" matter more consequential and careful research. . . .
It was listed exclusively that it should be the only milk used. . . . The results have the plain accent of Health, firm flesh, clear color, from the positive nutrient elements as found in this cream."

This same safe Van Camp's Sterilized Cream solves the pure milk problem for the whole family.
It is just pure milk and nothing else, evaporated and sterilized.
Therefore you can have absolutely sterile (germless) milk and cream for your table and cooking, at less cost than the milk man's unsafe product.
You just add the water we took out.
Van Camp's Sterilized Cream comes in pint cans—double thick.
For good, rich cream for your cereal add a pint of water to a can of Van Camp's Cream.
To make 3 pints of superfine milk add a quart of water to a can.
Your grocery dealer will deliver Van Camp's Sterilized Cream at 10 cts. a can.
By the case of 48 cans it is $4.50,—about 9 cts. a can.
You will find it unusually convenient to keep a case in your pantry.

THE DEAD JURIST.

William Hyatt Cunningham, Judge of Court of Common Pleas, is dead.
After a brave battle of two weeks with a malady which defied and baffled the skill of the physicians, the grim destroyer won, and early yesterday morning the soul left its earthly tenement and took its flight into the great beyond. The mortal remains now rest at the old homestead, where the happy boyhood years of this eminent jurist, were spent.

The death of Judge Cunningham removes from the bench one of the most capable judges of the common pleas court in the state of Ohio. He was an upright judge; a just judge; a judge whose every official act was above reproach and would endure the closest scrutiny.

He was singularly correct in his rulings and decisions upon the bench, and he was seldom reversed by the superior courts. He was a profound lawyer exceptionally well informed upon the intricacies of the law and in his decisions the equities and the law were so harmoniously blended that the justice of his decisions appealed to all interested in the cases that came before the tribunal over which he presided.

Judge Cunningham inherited a love of the law from his father, the late T. E. Cunningham, who, during his life was recognized as one of the ablest lawyers in Northern Ohio. In his early life Judge Cunningham taught several terms of country school; afterwards learned the trade of the printer; then going into his father's law office read law. He entered the practice and was very successful. During a term of residence in Van Wert County he was elected prosecuting attorney for two terms and was a most popular and efficient officer. Returning to Lima he continued the practice most successfully until his elevation to the common pleas bench. He was serving his second term at the time of his death.

Judge Cunningham was strongly urged by his friends to stand for nomination for circuit judge in the convention which nominated Judge Donnelly, but he declined to enter the race, preferring to remain upon the common pleas bench to which he had been elected by an overwhelming majority.

Judge Cunningham was but 52 years of age when his summons came to join the innumerable caravan in the ordinary expectancy of vidence. But he has been relieved of the cares and burdens of life. His work was finished and was well done.

He has gone to join those loved ones

DEAL CLOSED

For a Consideration of $27,000.

Oil Holdings in Ottawa
County Have Changed
Ownership.

17 PRODUCING WELLS

Leases Cover an Area of Five Hundred and Eighty Acres.

Substantial Daily Production Is Said to be Fifty Barrels.

Toledo, O., Nov. 26.—The first deal of any importance for some time in the Trenton Rock field has just been consummated. Clarence A. & Harry W.
Leeper have disposed of their holdings in the Genoa field, in Clay township, Ottawa county, to Vistline, Hinton and others of Bradner, O., for a consideration of $27,000. The deal consists of leases on 580 acres with 17 producing wells and a daily net production of 50 barrels. No well has been drilled on the property for several months and the production is pretty well settled, and the purchasers naturally got a bargain. Production is not bringing the price that it did some time ago. A year ago the prices ranged from $700 to $850 per barrel, while now the late deals show less than $600 per barrel.
The Leeper property at one time was the most productive in the Genoa field, and a well on the Al. Dolph farm, showed a production of about 250 barrels. The Leepers are now paying all their attention to the Illinois field where they are interested in a large number of leases with Herman R.
Klauser, the east side banker.

Gets a Big One.

The Erie Oil company of Boston, has just drilled in one above the average in No. 30 on the G. J. Niles farm, section 29, amounting to 150 barrels. Same company has abandoned No. 8 on the same farm. C. A. Leeper, manager of the company, will in all probability drill a couple more wells on the property before the close of winter. C. H. & L. C. Van Vleck have abandoned No. 1 on the H. Schoefeld farm.

In Wood County.

In Montgomery township, Wood county, Riley, Easton and others have drilled in No. 2 on the D. Pomeroy farm, section 18, and it pumped 50 barrels, an unusually large well for the Prairie Depot region. H. C. Cordery and others have a 12 barrels pumper in No. 6 P. Amos farm, section 6.

In Bloom township, same county, the Ohio Oil company has abandoned well No. 5 on the H. Hamman farm, section 16.

In Portage township, same county, the Ohio Oil company's No. 53 on the J. Trappell farm, section 30, pumped 30 barrels. Bateson & Duesler's No. 1 on the Joseph Boyer farm, in the southeast quarter of section 21, pumped 7 barrels. McKinney &

Postoria at Findlay.

Postoria took the lead in the West-bunch went down in a shut out game at Springfield, Saturday night, 5 to 0.

The locals were badly crippled,
"Doc" Murray, who had been signed by Manager Poor, having been recalled by Akron, before he ever put on the rollers for the local bunch. Vog-stein, however, played his usually good game. Tonight the team will line up against Springfield in the return match, and will present McCarthy at first rush; McElbhen or Robertson, if able, second rush; Vogstein, cen-

The expected meeting of the league managers did not materialize here yes-no regular form now being used more

A real estate transaction of considtoday when David C. Dunn, of the Eagle Stave Co., sold his handsome and palatial residence on Cole street to B. F. Williams, a prominent and well known oil man of Lima. The consideration was $22,000.

When interviewed today Mr. Dunn stated that he has had under serious consideration for some time a flattering offer to associate himself with a large corporation that will require his removal from the city. He declined at this time to outline his plans farther.
In the removal of Mr. Dunn Lima will lose one of its foremost and energetic citizens. During his residence here Mr. Dunn has built more than a half hundred dwellings and has always taken an active part in the welfare of this city will wish him and his family every success in their new

Bribing Georgie

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR

Copyright, 1906, by C. H. Satchler

"I think I had better take you to the train," said Ethel, today. "I do not want to leave you to the whole family. The fact that my attentions were bestowed upon a man so utterly unworthy of them."

"I will have to announce the breaking of the engagement some time," suggested Castron, "but I guess it's better this way. We'll talk it over on the way into town. You have not given me a chance to defend myself yet. It will be all right when I get a chance to talk to you quietly."

Ethel smiled. That was precisely what she wished to avoid. She would take the dog cart and have the little

"I'll make it five," he offered.

groom go along. Castron noticed the smile and guessed her thoughts. When the cart was brought around the back seat was unoccupied.

"James said he had to send the boy to town," was the explanation. "He will be waiting for you at the station." Ethel frowned and turned and walked to where her small brother was trying to coax the goldfish from the fountain basin with a bent pin and a bit of bread. He looked up guiltily at her approach, but was visibly relieved when he saw who it was.

"Don't you want to ride into town with Mr. Castron and me?" she said. "Nope," he said decidedly.

"I'll give you that air gun if you will," she bribed.

"It costs $2," he warned. "I know," she agreed. "Hurry, or Mr. Castron will miss his train."

Georgie raced across the lawn and climbed into the back seat. "All right, boy," he announced gleefully. Frank Castron said something beneath the cover of his mustache and scowled as he helped Ethel into her seat on the box.

It was apparent that Ethel was determined not to afford him any opportunity for a tete-a-tete. He thought that he had frustrated her design when he had bribed the head coachman to send the tiger to town, but he had not counted on Georgie. He settled himself in his seat, and Ethel took up the lines.

They covered the first half mile in silence. Then he broke the quiet. "I want to tell you," he began, "that that racket was—"

"Georgie will hear," she whispered. "Please spare me the annoyance of having the wretched story spread all over the house."

"But if only you would listen for a moment," he pleaded. "Let Georgie drop off and walk back. He won't mind."

"I do," she said severely. "Do not make me think any worse of you than I do already."

"But it is all such a miserable mistake," he pleaded, "and you have not given me a chance for a single word since it happened."

For answer Ethel turned to speak to the boy, and Castron gritted his teeth. Just five minutes and the whole miserable mistake would be explained. If he could not get this chance, there was no hope. She would return his letters unread, just as she had sent back the note he had written last night. A bit of puerile blowing noses the road frightened the horses and demanded her attention. Castron leaned over the back of the seat.

"I'll give you a dollar to fall off and go back to the house," he offered. "Six is going to give me two," he explained.

"I'll make it five," he offered. Georgie was resolute. "I made a bargain," he declared. "I wouldn't be fair."

Castron faced the front again. Everything seemed to be against him. "I congratulate you upon your foresight in bribing Georgie," he said bitterly. "You seem determined to allow me no opportunity to explain."

"There is no possible explanation," she said decidedly. "The least you can do is to keep silent for the few minutes longer that you are to be bidden with my company."

"Very well," he said shortly. "If you are determined, I suppose there is no use in trying to prove you wrong."

She averted her head, and as they bowed along through the leafy avenue Castron, all unconscious of the tumult in her mind, wherein pride and affection waged war, sat in silent agony reviewing the events of the past twenty-four hours.

At Christmas Ethel had given him a book, "The Art of Boxing," and had found therein another picture and a lack of hair that in no way suggested her own abundant curls.

Before he could explain she had run into the house, and no amount of entreaty could induce her to listen to his explanation.

For two miles no one spoke. Georgie wriggled uneasily on the back seat from time to time, while the horse's hoofs beating on the smooth road seemed to Castron to count the lost seconds.

At last, in desperation, he felt in his pocket. There was a bill he had slipped into his change pocket to avoid the trouble of taking out his pocket-book in the station. Gently he withdrew the bill and for an instant held it behind his back; then, certain that Georgie had seen it, he released his hold and let it flutter to the road.

Quickly the boy slipped off the tail-board and scrambled in the dust. Castron turned to Ethel.

"We are almost in town," he said. "I insist upon being given the right to explain."

"Hush," she warned. "Georgie will hear."

"Not unless he has exceptional ears," he smiled. "Georgie is about half a mile back."

Ethel half turned to her seat to convince herself, then turned to him again.

"I suppose you bought him off," she said scornfully. "You told me you were aware of his price. I suppose I shall have to listen since I cannot drive and stop up my ears too."

"I'll drive," he volunteered. "If you want to stop up your ears."

"What is it you wish to say?" she demanded, ignoring his generous offer. "Just this," he said eagerly. "That is not my pocket at all."

"As though I did not recognize it?" she scoffed.

"It fooled me," he argued. "You see, I haven't looked inside since I've been up here because I've had the original of the picture to look at. I never noticed that I picked up Frank Castron's pocket by mistake. You were so proud of the uniqueness of the locket that I had to tell you that my room-mate had one just like it. From the similarity of the engraving I fancy it came from the same store."

"When I picked up the chain I got Frank's and never found it out until you opened it. That girl in this locket is Frank's fiancée."

For a moment the horses trotted along in silence broken only by their hoof beats; then she turned to him with moist eyes.

"What can you think of me?" she cried penitently.

"That you are the dearest little woman in the world," he said promptly. Her hand stole into his.

"I'll never be so foolish again," she said. "I'm so glad you persisted, dear."

"Me, too," he agreed.

A couple of days later Castron was smiling over a scrawny letter that had just come. It read:

Dear Fred—Here's yer $5. It ain't fair to take it, because I didn't drop off that reason because of the five, but because I want you to be my brother-in-law some day. I heard what sis said. I guess she wanted me to, too, because she saw me the sun and cried over me. It's funny to have a girl cry over you. Did you ever have one cry over you? Come up soon. Ter, brother-in-law to be. GEORGIE Castron smiled reminiscently, recalling the last ride to town.

Weighted Upon His Father.

When Mr. Finnerty returned after a day's outing with Michael, the only son, his face was long and doleful and quickly drew inquiries from the mother.

"I mistrust Mickey is not long for this world," said Mr. Finnerty, with a deep sigh. "I mistrust there's a spell over him already, and he'll not be long over him."

"Arrah, what are you thinkin' about?" demanded his wife as she removed some light brown sticky decorations from the countenance of the sleepy Michael. "He's one of the long, thin kind, but he's got his good health and a fine pair of lungs in him."

Mr. Finnerty shook his head with stubborn conviction.

"You can say what plazes you," he remarked emphatically, "but I've got to tell you, woman, on the platform of the station there was a large, big scales, an' I stepped on, holdin' Mickey by the hand. They tipped an' balanced at wan hundred twenty-two pounds. Thin I lifted Mickey up an' hid him in the air—all free of the platform. mind ye—and, woman, thin scales never drooped a pound."

There was only a bit of a tinkle. "I'd hardly the strength in me legs to walk home."

A Glean of Hope.

The dark lantern flashed through the door. Then came the gleam of a revolver.

"Hands up!" hissed the head of the family. "You are a burglar?"

"Y-yes," gasped the intruder as he faced the cold steel.

"What have you stolen?"

"Your wife's pug dog."

"H'm! Er—if that's all, you may sneak out quietly."

"And your mother-in-law's parrot."

"You don't say! Well, here is some loose change."

"And your daughter's phonograph."

"Good! Here's some more loose change."

"Also your son's punching bag."

"What? Great Scott, man, come out to the back! There's certainly will be some peace in this lot from now on."

MAN AND HIS FISTS

MAETERLINCK ON THE SCIENCE OF SELF DEFENSE.

A Tribune (to the Art of Boxing, an Analysis of Human Anatomy and a Comparison of the Natural Weapons of Man and the Animals.

The fact is that if we examine ourselves well, we must rank ourselves without vanity among the most unprotected, the most naked, the most fragile, the most brittle and flaccid beings in creation. Compare us, for instance, with the insect, so formidably equipped for attack and so fantastically armored against. Contemplate among others the ant, upon which you may heap ten or twenty thousand times the weight of its body without apparently inconveniencing it. Consider the cock-chaffer, the least robust of the beetles, and weigh what it is able to carry before the rings of its abdomen crack or the casings of its fore wings yield. As for the resistance of the stag beetle, it is, so to speak, unlimited.

In comparison, therefore, we and the majority of mammals are unsoldiered beings, still in the golden state and very near to the primitive protoplasm. Our skeleton alone, which is, as it were, the rough sketch of our definitive form, offers a certain consistency. But how wretched is this skeleton, which one would think constructed by a child! Look at our spine, the basis of our whole system, whose all set vertebrae hold together only by a miracle, and our thoracic cage, which presents only a series of diagonals which we hardly dare touch with the finger tips.

Now, it is against this slack and incoherent machine, which resembles an abortive effort of nature, against this pitiful organism, from which life tends to escape on every side, that we have contrived weapons capable of annihilating us, even if we possessed the fabulous armor of the insect, the prodigious strength and the incredible vitality of the most indestructible insects.

We have here, it must be agreed, a very curious and a very disconcerting aberration, an initial fluke, peculiar to the human race, that goes on increasing day by day. In order to return to the natural logic followed by all other living things, though we be permitted to use extraordinary weapons against our enemies of a different order, we ought among ourselves, among men, to employ only the means of attack and defense provided by our own bodies. We were mankind to conform strictly to the evident will of nature, the fist, which is to man what its horns are to the bull and its claws and teeth to the lion, the fist should suffice for all our needs of protection, justice and revenge. A wiser race would forbid any other mode of combat as an irremissible crime against the essential laws of the species. At the end of a few generations we should thus succeed in spreading and putting into force a sort of pantheistic respect of human life.

Meanwhile the study of boxing gives us excellent lessons in humility and throws a somewhat alarming light upon the forfeiture of some of our most valuable instincts. We soon perceive that in all that concerns the use of our limbs—agility, dexterity, muscular strength, resistance to pain—we have sunk to the lowest rank of the mammals or batrachians. From this point of view, in a well conceived hierarchy, we should be entitled to a modest place between the frog and the sheep.

The kick of the horse, the butt of the bull, the bite of the dog, are mechanically and anatomically perfect. It would be impossible to improve, by the most learned lessons, their instinctive manner of using their natural weapons. But we, the "hominins," the proudest of the primates, do not know how to strike a blow with our fist. We do not even know which exactly is the weapon of our kind.

Look at two draymen, two peasants, who come to blows. Nothing could be more pitiable. After a copious and dilatory broadside of insults and threats they seize each other by the throat and hair, make play with their feet, with their knees at random, bite each other, scratch each other, get entangled in their motionless rage, dare not let go, and one of them succeeds in releasing an arm and strikes out blindly and most often into space a series of hurried, stunted and ineffectual little blows. Nor would the combat ever end did not the treacherous knife, evoked by the disgrace of the inconspicuous sight, suddenly, almost spontaneously, leap from the pocket of one or the other.

On the contrary, watch two pugilists—no useless words, no groppings, no anger; the calmness of two certainties that know what lies before them; the athletic attitude of the guard, one of the finest of the male body. The defeated man will rise to his feet with no lasting damage because the resistance of his bones and his organs is strictly and naturally proportioned to the power of the human weapon that has struck him and brought him to the ground.

It may seem paradoxical, but the fact is easily established that the science of boxing in those countries where it is generally practiced and cultivated becomes a pledge of peace and gentleness. Our aggressive nervousness, our watchful susceptibility, that sort of perpetual state of alarm in which our jealous vanity moves, all these arise, at bottom, from the sense of our weakness and of our physical inferiority, which toil as best they may to overcome, by a proud and irritable mask, the men, often childish, unjust and malevolent, that surround us.

The more that we feel ourselves diminished in the face of attack the more are we tortured by the longing to prove to others and to persuade ourselves that no one attacks us with impunity. Courage becomes the most treacherous, the most intractable, in proportion as our anxiously terrified instinct, covering within the body that is to receive the blows, asks itself how the bout will end. What will this poor, prudent instinct do should the crisis go badly?

THE TELEGRAPH.

Opposition and Rebutts With Which Morse Had to Contend.

The Morse telegraph, invention longed for years in the hands of its starving inventor because capitalists were indifferent or incapable of appreciating its merits.

It was several years before congress voted an appropriation to allow its inventor to make a practical test of it, and baroque bills were offered to provide means for communicating with the man in the moon.

"He's a very good, but shiftless painter," he would only stick to his job," some one said of Morse. "The idea of telling by a little streak of lightning what a body is saying at the other end of a wire."

His instrument, it was said, was all very well as a mantel ornament or for a mistress to call her maid, but the wires couldn't cross rivers, oceans and deserts.

Even after the line was up between Washington and Baltimore and Silas Wright sent a dispatch to the Democratic convention at Baltimore declining its nomination of him to the vice presidency, it was not accepted as true until a committee went to Washington and returned with the confirmation of the report.

There was similar though less objection offered to the overland telegraph. Senator Benton declared that it would be impossible to operate it, because the digger Indians would cut the wires to make hooks for digging up the roots and bushes on which they lived.—Sunday Magazine.

BULLIOT'S BET.

A Banker's Wager on St. Swifth's Day Race Legend.

There were few frenzied financiers in England at the beginning of the eighteenth century if the banker Bulliot, of whom the following story is told, can be taken as an example. The feast of St. Swifth, July 15, 1725, was a particularly wet and stormy day.

Trusting implicitly in the old superstition, which says that if it rains on St. Swifth's day it will rain for forty days thereafter, Bulliot opened a pool for every one who was willing to bet against him. The affair attained so much notoriety that the wager was reduced to writing.

"If dating from St. Swifth's day," reads the memorandum, "it rains more or little during forty days successively Bulliot will be considered to have gained, but if it ceases to rain for only one day during that time Bulliot has lost."

For two weeks it continued to shower every day, and so confident did the banker become that he accepted as stakes not only money, but gold, beads, canes, jewels, snuffboxes and even clothes. When his cash gave out he offered notes and bills of exchange. Another week passed, and Bulliot's star was still in the ascendant.

But when the twenty-second day sank into the west bright and cloudless the unfortunate banker was ruined.

A Good Reply.

During the Apache war in Arizona in 1886 a Maricopa Indian rode a hundred miles between sun and sun to warn a party of well to do emigrants that the Apaches had planned to ambush them at a certain pass. The young Indian volunteered to guide the wagons by another route, and when he had done this he mounted his horse to go home.

"See here," said the leader of the train to the young Maricopa, "you have done us a good service. What is your price?"

"My price?" repeated the astonished Indian.

"That is what I asked."

"I have no price," had gained been my object I would have joined the Apaches and met you in the pass. And so saying the brave wheeled his horse and rode proudly away.

The Best Beloved.

William Pitt, leader at Darriusdale, in Northampton, Scotland, was a man of about six feet two inches in height, with broad, heavy shoulders. There had been a succession of ministers during his official career, says a writer in Blackwood's Magazine, among them the Rev. Dr. Morrison, who was subsequently translated to the Tron church, Edinburgh, a minister of decidedly larger build than his predecessors. One of the farmers in the parish said to the leader one day:

"Will you have served under a good many ministers. Which of them all did you like best?"

"Morrison's clothes fitted me best!" Will replied curtly.

Chinese Pirates.

Piracy is no new thing in the waters around Hongkong. As long ago as the thirteenth century the island of Hongkong was a piratical stronghold, and for centuries the Chinese government was unable to drive the sea robbers out. All craft passing what is now Hongkong harbor were compelled to pay tribute. The higher elevations of the island served as lookout stations, and no boat that approached was permitted to leave until it had paid toll.

Real life on the farm means corn in abundance, hogs a plenty, cows enough to keep every vessel on the place overflowing with milk, horses for every member of the family, chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, fruit in season and out of season, babies and good cheer all the year round.—Houston (Tex.) Post.

That the regular use of Lima beer will give strength and vigor, is no idle claim. The "body" of Lima beer is barley malt, one of the most vitally nutritious foods, and hops, one of the best known tonics.

Lima beer nourishes the body, puts new vigor into the blood, aids in the digestion of other foods and tones up the entire system.

TO HIS MAKER THE SUPREME JUDGE OF ALL BAZAAR HAS CLOSED

His Soul Has Taken Its Flight.

Death of the Hon. William H. Cunningham Is Written.

HOURS OF SUFFERING

Ended in Quiet Resignation to the Grim Reaper's Will.

Prominent in City Life, a Noble Man, and Eminent Jurist is Gone.

Death has claimed all that was mortal of the Hon. Wm. H. Cunningham, judge of the common pleas court in this sub-division of the Third Judicial district of Ohio.

Probably no jurist had a larger personal following of staunch friends than has been claimed for years by Judge Cunningham. Popular to a degree, a gentleman of high ideals, and a learned lawyer, his companionship was an object. His advice was always sought for his tireless energy never refused an accommodation.

The death comes cruelly in its harshness and in its suddenness. Judge Cunningham held court two weeks ago today retiring to his private apartments in the Payne block, the latter part of that week, and sending word out he was temporarily indisposed from a bout which had appeared on his neck.

Though knowing he was suffering intense pain, the complaint was not deemed in any manner serious. On Thursday his friends became alarmed and his brothers, Harold and Newton, made earnest appeal that he permit them to remove him to one of their homes, and on refusal entreated him to go to the hospital. The deceased would do neither, claiming he would rally as soon as the pain ceased. Blood poisoning followed, and had, it is feared, entered the system even before known to the physicians. Opiates were used to ease the pain and induce the sleep which had so long been refused, but they only postponed that sleep from which there is no awakening.

A Son of "Doan" Cunningham.

William H. Cunningham was a son of Hon. Theodore E. Cunningham, being born of Scotch-Irish stock, his great grandfather coming to Ohio in 1821 from Pennsylvania, and clearing a large acreage in Wayne county. "Like father, like son" has oft been recalled of the jurist, for the elder Cunningham early sought the newspaper field at Kalida, and Judge Cunningham has often related how he learned the art of sticking type when a lad. But like the father, the deceased left the editorial chair for the law, and reached one of the highest gifts of his party, where he served with distinction almost to the day of his death.

Judge Cunningham was born in this city, and was 52 years of age. He was active in the practice of law until his election as common pleas judge in this sub-division, in the fall of 1889. He took his judicial office in February of 1889, and has served continuously since that date, being renominated without opposition and elected without opposition for a second term in 1902. Judge Cunningham learned his first Blackstone in his father's office, and was admitted to the bar of his state in 1876. He has been noted for his fair and impartial decisions on the bench, and has been often called to other districts to try difficult legal problems, his opinions always having been held in the highest regard by his associates.

He has always been a staunch democrat, a man fearless in his views for the rich. Though not active in fraternal life of late years, the deceased was a member of the Masonic fraternity, was an Oddfellow, a member of Lima lodge No. 162 B. P. O. Elks, and a Red man. His beloved wife, the late Emma L. Funk-Cunningham, died in 1883, and one son, Allan, now employed in the West and who has arrived in this city, was born to the union.

Judge Cunningham is also survived by four brothers—Harold and Newton, both of this city; Lou, of Findlay, and Theo E. Jr., of Chicago; while one sister, Blanche Cunningham-Hackford preceded him to the grave.

To the Old Homestead.

The body of the deceased jurist has been removed by undertaker Eckert to the old Cunningham homestead situated at the corner of Elizabeth and Elm streets, now the home of one of the deceased's brothers, Harold Cunningham. The funeral will be held from the residence at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The funeral sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. M. Mills and an address will be delivered by Attorney Jas. W. Halthill in the form of a eulogy delivered on behalf of the Allen County Bar Association. Members of the various lodges to which Judge Cunningham belonged, will attend the funeral in separate bodies, but none of the orders will participate actively in the funeral obsequies. Music for the funeral will be arranged for and conducted under the direction of Mr. C. A. Richmond, of the local lodge of Elks.

The members of the Allen County Bar Association held a special meeting at the court house this morning and after the necessary committees were appointed, the selection of the following active pall bearers was announced: Messrs. Theo. D. Robb, Wm. Klinger, Elmer Mitchell, J. A. Chapin, A. S. Graham and Walter M. Scott. The other members of the judiciary of the district have been chosen as honorary pall bearers.

Notice, B. P. O. Elks.

Members of Lima Lodge No. 162, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will meet at the lodge room, tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon, promptly at 1:30 o'clock in readiness to attend the funeral of Bro. William H. Cunningham.

THE PRIZE WINNERS

All Had Close Seconds In the Spirited But Friendly Races.

The successful bazaar of St. Rose which opened last Tuesday, came to a close Saturday evening. The contests were all spirited and friendly and each contestant brought in good returns from their efforts to win the coveted prizes for which they were striving. In the diamond ring contest, the battle was a close one, Miss Terso Stein winning over Miss Mona Casey by a few votes. In the contest for the furs, little Catherine McNamara, was the winner. The set of books which was contested for by the St. Aloysius (boys) Sodality and the Children of Mary (girls) Sodality was won by the latter. The forty dollar suit of clothes donated by Werner & Winkler was drawn by James Donohue, who held the winning number. The artistically arranged booths, the fish pond, table of religious articles, candy table and refreshment tables were all well patronized and the bazaar was a social as well as a financial success.

THE STAGE.

"East Lynne," the greatest story ever woven about woman's wrongs, the favorite dramatic vehicle in the past of many famous actors and actresses, and one of the most powerful magnets in the theatrical field today, will be given a notably artistic presentation by Joseph King's New York company at the Faurot Opera House tonight.

The many friends of merry Frank Daniels should turn out en masse on Wednesday night and give the genial little comedian a royal welcome when he appears at Faurot Opera House in the title role of his tunny musical farce, "Sergeant Brue," in which he is playing his third season. The piece is an English importation Americanized to suit the local taste. It is said to afford the comedian a splendid chance to display his versatile powers of comedy, and he is the merry axie about which all the fun of the play turns. The play is under the management of Charles Dillingham and there has, it is claimed, been keen work in the selection of details such as scenic effects and settings. The book is by Owen Hall, and the music by Liza Lehman
